Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Merritt and their two teen-age children, Ronald and Carolyn, are sound sleepers.

The storm that swept over Washington C. H. about 3 A. M. Thursday scored a bull's eye hit on their home on East Elm Street, just off North Street, and none of them knew it until long after daylight.

The bolt hit the comb of the roof and slashed a gash through it clear to the eaves, scattering splintered shingles all over.

And the Merritts slept peacefully on.

When the family got up for breakfast, they were puzzled when, Mrs. Dale Merritt, a next door neighbor told them the roof of their house was splintered.

The clothes in Carolyn's closet were all on the floor. And, the chain that fastened the bathtub stop to the faucet was all broken up and scattered.

Merritt went outside to have a look. It was then that he saw what the lightning had done.

Neighbors heard the crash of the thunder. Some said they were awakened by the flash of lightning. Others said the crash brought them bolt upright in bed.

Carolyn said she faintly remembered feeling the bed shake a little.

Boston Mayor Goes to Jail

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—Mayor James M. Curley of Boston lost today his appeal for suspension of a six to 18 months jail sentence on mail fraud charges, and must serve it.

Denying the appeal, Justice James M. Proctor said "I regard the case as ended as far as the court is concerned."

"I think he (Curley) should be committed today."

The judge denied a plea of defense attorneys that the 72-year-old mayor be given a few days to clear up pressing municipal matters.

Curley, the judge declared, can settle the handling of any immediate city matters "with his keepers."

De Nicola Re-elected

ROME, June 26—(AP)—Italy's constituent assembly re-elected Enrico De Nicola as provisional president of the Italian republic today, less than 24 hours after he resigned, saying that he was in poor health.

Garments Sent Four Years Ago Reach Destination

Four years ago, Mrs. Oliver Smith of the Lewis pike sewed several baby garments for the Red Cross here which were sent to Poland and today Mrs. Smith announced that she has a letter from the woman who received the baby clothes telling of herself and her family.

The Polish woman, Nar Jarviga Kapus'cik, is expecting a baby shortly and Mrs. Smith and several other women are planning to send her other packages for the new baby and her other three children and husband.

The letter reads as follows: (The letter is reprinted exactly as it was written, retaining the original spelling and punctuation.)

"From the Polish Red Cross I have received a chemise for baby, in which I found your address. I think, that you have made a present and thank you very much.

City Fathers Given Pat on Back

Washington C. H. Operation Cost About Lowest in Ohio

Washington C. H. is one of the best managed and most economically operated of many Ohio cities, and in some respects holds the record in Ohio for minimum costs of departmental operation, according to a summary of fiscal operations compiled by the local government tax service of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, and just released here through the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce.

Copies of the interesting report, together with other data, were presented to city council Wednesday night by Fred Rost, executive secretary of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce, and instantly elicited attention and expressions of appreciation on the part of councilmen.

In presenting the mimeographed report, Rost said that upon two occasions the chamber of commerce had taken action which would not have been taken had the board of directors been fully conversant with the facts, and as a result the dependable information through a survey by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce's agency, had been obtained.

He said that the report was highly complimentary in regard to the way the business of the city has been handled over a period of years, and that the department had found this city to be the best managed of any examined in 14 years of study.

"The department found that the way the money has been spent and service rendered has been a perfect job," Rost said in submitting the report.

Green Rejects AFL Protest Strike But Thousands of CIO Miners Idle

(By The Associated Press)

AFL President William Green today rejected pleas from member unions for a general strike in protest against the new Taft-Hartley labor union control law.

Green called presidents of the AFL's 105 unions to a conference in Washington July 9 Green told reporters, after an emergency meeting with resident members of the AFL's influential executive council that he thought it "unwise and inadvisable" to bow to telegrams and letters from unions throughout the nation asking that a general strike be called.

"Instead, we are going to fight the measure in the courts and seek to maintain our rights under the bill in negotiations with employers," Green said.

"Serious consideration" of a national work stoppage to protest the Taft-Hartley labor act was urged upon the executive board of the Congress of industrial organizations today by the Cleveland industrial union council, central organization for CIO unions in the city, however.

The No. 1 and No. 2 framers of the Taft-Hartley labor law in the House split sharply today over how to cope with John L. Lewis and the growing soft coal stoppage.

Rep. Hartley (R-NJ), co-sponsor of the act placed on the books last Monday over President Truman's veto, lashed out at Lewis as a "rebellious and mutinous citizen."

He called for adding a whole new section to the law to deal with Lewis and the "challenge" of other union leaders.

On the other hand, Rep. Landis (R-Ind), second in command on the House labor committee and a former miner, said he thinks the soft coal operators ought to "give in" to some of Lewis' contract demands in order to remove the threat of a full-fledged strike July 8.

That is the day the miners are due back at work after their 10-day vacation. This begins tomorrow midnight, but more than 200,000 have left work ahead of time. The vacation, plus a $100 cash payment, is called for under the government's contract with Lewis and his United Mine Workers.

Meanwhile, Ohio had 10,000 miners idle today, and coal and coke shortages began to curtail the state's steel and iron output.

Only six of 22 eastern Ohio major mines were in operation through yesterday while all major producers in the Hocking Valley field were shut down.

Nearly 6,000 participating in Taft-Hartley bill protest walkouts here and Athens reported 4,000 idle in its area. Daily production has dropped nearly 65,000 tons below normal.

A 40 percent steel slash and 50 percent reduction in iron at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube was accompanied by curtailed production of both iron and steel by Carnegie-Illinois.

The mine workers union start a 10-day holiday tomorrow at midnight and there was slight chance any would return to work until after their vacation period.

Steel mills and railroads, feeling the effects of the four-day-old coal stoppage, began to lay off workers today as wildcat walkouts by the nation's miners appeared to gain rather than lose momentum.

Some of the 22,000 idle miners said they were jumping the gun on the 10-day mine vacation which starts at midnight tomorrow. But the majority were walking out in bitter protest against the Hartley-Taft labor law.

Four Victims of Lake Tragedy Found

ST. MARYS, June 26—(AP)—The bodies of all four victims who drowned in Lake St. Mary Saturday when their rowboats capsized, now have been recovered. The body of Joseph Dawson of Wheaton, Ill., a ministry student, was found floating in the lake yesterday. Earlier, bodies of Paul Dawson of Indianapolis, George Dawson of Hood River, Ore., and Harry E. Lee of Lima were recovered.

Tariff Boosts Made Possible By Provisions

Blow to Leadership In World Affairs President Asserts

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—President Truman today vetoed the wool price support bill because he said it would have "an adverse effect on our international relations."

The veto was sent to the Senate, where the bill originated. Senator Aiken (R-Vt.) asked that it be referred to the agriculture committee, which arranged a meeting for this afternoon to consider what action will be taken.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) told reporters there is no chance that the legislation can be enacted over the veto. A two-thirds vote in Senate and House is necessary to override the presidential rejection. Barkley speculated that the bill may be allowed to die in the committee.

The measure would have continued government prices on wool at present levels and authorized the president to boost tariffs or restrict imports if foreign wool or wool products pushed down domestic prices.

"The enactment of a law providing for additional barriers to the importation of wool at the very moment when this government is taking the leading part in a United Nations conference at Geneva" to reduce trade barriers "would be a tragic mistake," Mr. Truman said.

He added in a message to Congress:

"It would be a blow to our leadership in world affairs.

"It would be interpreted around the world as a first step on that same road to economic isolation down which we and other countries traveled after the first world war with such disastrous consequences.

"I cannot approve such an action."

The veto was the third major one this congressional session.

He previously had vetoed a tax reduction bill and the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

The House upheld the tax bill veto but both the Senate and House overrode the labor bill veto, making it law.

The wool price bill veto message was sent to the Senate which will get its first opportunity to decide on upholding or overriding the president. A two-thirds vote in both houses is required to set aside a veto.

Mr. Truman declared that American wool growers are entitled to price support and called on Congress to act promptly on a new bill "consistent with our international responsibilities and the interest of our economy as a whole."

He said that the original Senate bill was satisfactory to him but he objected to the House-added amendment "intended to increase the tariff on wool through the imposition of import fees." He added:

"This was done to provide a means of increasing the domestic market price for wool to approximately the support price, thus shifting the cost of the support from the treasury to the consumers of wool products. The prices of these products are already high."

The veto was not unexpected. Rep. Cooley (D-NC) called at the White House yesterday to urge such action and told reporters later the president had not frowned on his suggestion.

Shortage of Paper May Gag Congress

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—If the paper shortage doesn't ease up soon, Congress members may find it advisable to cut down on their speech-making.

The appropriations committee on their speech-making. informed the House of this dire prospect today.

It said the government printing office reports it is getting just barely enough newsprint to print the Congressional Record and sees no chance for increased supplies.

The Record prints the speeches and proceedings in Congress.

Fewer speeches would save money.

The officials told the committee it cost an average of $71 a page to print the Record.

Juror Threatened In Murder Trial

SANTA ANA, Calif., June 26—(AP)—A startling report of a threat to a juror had the court room in the Overell yatch murder trial still buzzing today.

A woman juror complained to Newport Beach police that an unidentified man entered her apartment, struck her and threatened more harm if she voted to convict Louise Overell, 18, and her lover, George Gollum, 21, of murdering the girl defendant's parents. The jury has not been locked up.

Trial Judge Kenneth E. Morrison took no official cognizance of the alleged attack, insofar as any courtroom statement was concerned. He conferred in his chambers with the juror, Mrs. Uvon Putnam, wife of a Newport Beach carpenter, both before and after yesterday's session of the trial. He declined comment on the incident.

CHICAGO, June 26—(AP)—James W. Egan, Jr., president of the National Advertising Association and vice president and advertising director of the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, said today the nation's newspapers had arrived "at a new peak of advertising efficiency."

Six Killed in Train Wreck; Cause of Derailment Unknown

SHELBY, June 26—(AP)—A derailment of the New York Central Railroad's St. Louis special took six, and possibly seven, lives last night at nearby Shiloh when twin locomotives pulling the six-car passenger train from Cleveland to St. Louis leaped the track and plunged into an embankment.

The engineers and firemen of both locomotives and two members of a railroad work camp were killed.

The state highway patrol said a third railroad camp worker was believed buried in the wreckage.

A search continued today for the body of one of the engineers—buried beneath tons of coal in the cab of the lead engine—and for that of a possible seventh victim, who was not identified.

Railroad officials would not comment on the possible cause of the derailment which upset only the locomotives and two express cars.

Three of the 48 passengers aboard the all-coach train were injured slightly.

In leaping the track, the first locomotive plunged through the air like a diver from a springboard, every wheel off the ground, witnesses said. It narrowly missed colliding with a work train in which were about 200 laborers.

Typical of the shaken-up, but uninjured passengers was the remark of O. E. Elliott, a Shawnee, Okla., undertaker. He said: "We went bump, bump, bump, like we were rolling over the ties. I held on to my seat and to my wife."

Marooned until almost midnight, the passengers were picked up by another train after the Red Cross provided coffee and doughnuts during the waiting period.

Hope Is Held for Good Corn Crop In Spite of Floods and Wet Fields

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—The agriculture department still hopes for an above-average corn crop despite widespread spring floods and delays in planting caused by a wet season.

A department spokesman, commenting on sharply advancing corn prices and private forecasts of a corn crop failure, said today it is too early in the season to make predictions that are "worth anything."

"The outlook is, of course, not as favorable as it was last year," he said. "But two weeks of warm, dry weather could change the prospects completely."

The department will issue its first corn crop forecast on July 10. This estimate will be based on word from more than 100,000 crop reporters in various parts of the country.

The corn crop, the nation's major food crop, averaged 2,608,000,000 bushels for the 1935-44 period. Production last year reached a record of 3,285,000,000 bushels. The smallest crop in recent years was 1,445,000,000 in 1934.

Conditions this year are somewhat similar to those in June, 1945. At that time, fears were expressed that the nation was due for a corn failure. Yet the crop turned out to be 2,880,000,000 bushels.

Officials expressed the opinion that recent price advances in the cash and futures commodity markets tended more to reflect the shortage of corn supplies in the nation's grain markets than a feeling of concern over this year's crop.

They said little corn is moving off farms to market because (A) farmers are too busy with other work to haul grain and (B) they want to hold on to present supplies for possible future livestock feeding purposes until they get a better idea how this year's crop will turn out.

With market supplies small, grain traders as well as grain processor find it necessary to bid up prices to fulfill current contracts.

Campfire Girls To Open Camp Next Monday

Summers' Cottage To Be Occupied For Six Weeks

Camp for the Campfire Girls at the W. E. Summers summer cottage near Rock Mills on Paint Creek opens Monday for six one-week periods and a final week of two-day periods for the Bluebirds, junior Campfire Girls.

The last week, open for two day periods as follows: August 11 and 12; August 13 and 14, and August 15 and 16. The fee for Bluebird campers is $2 while regular Campfire girls pay $7 for their week-long stay at camp.

Mrs. Tom Bush, who is director of the camp, said that Bluebirds need to bring only bedding, pajamas and a wash basin to camp, if they wear suitable camping clothes when they come. Mrs. Bush emphasized the importance of bringing a wash basin, since there is only outdoor plumbing at the camp and the girls will have to wash at the well.

She also said that there is no need to bring money to camp since there is nothing to buy and no place to spend money. Open house for parents and visitors will be every Friday night from 7 P. M. to 9 P. M. when the girls will hold a traditional Council Fire. Parents are not encouraged to visit the camp at any other times.

Girls who want to go have been urged to register as soon as possible. Registration blanks and doctors' certificates may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office.

for the city's low tax duplicate was the fact that some of the largest industries were outside of the city and paid no taxes to the city.

He also said that a large part of the income from many other cities is derived from the large industrial concerns within the city.

"No county should have a huge amount of money in reserve when other taxing districts are in need of funds," said Baughn.

Rost in conclusion, said that at least two other cities in Ohio are greatly interested in the large income from the police court here. He pledged every possible assistance in aiding the city officials at any time.

The opening paragraph of the report read:

"A review of fund transactions should be of particular interest to the taxpayers of Washington C. H. as it reflects a very conservative cost for the city's operation."

"Table No. 1 shows that the total receipts for the year 1946 were $211,129.36 while the disbursements were $200,335.03, leaving a balance for the year of $10,794.33."

Continuing the report says in part:

"In comparison with other cities operating and maintenance costs as a whole have been conservative over the past seven years, as shown by Table No. 3. The 1946 costs were the lowest and $24,643.29, or 33.5 percent lower than the average costs of the cities compared."

"The city of Washington C. H. has one of the lowest property tax duplicates in the state. The 1945 valuations collectible in 1946 were $9,324,238. They were 12.1 percent lower than the next lowest city, Van Wert, and 48.7 percent lower than the highest, Troy. Table No. 4 also shows the 1945 valuations with the per capita valuation of all cities compared."

"Tax rates collectible in 1946 in Washington C. H. were also exceedingly low as shown in Table 4. The city's operating rate was 2.55 mills while the debt rate was 1 mill making a total of 3.55 mills, producing a per capita cost of $3.52, the lowest of all cities compared."

"Exhibits found on pages following, give tax rates, in detail, for county, school and city, for the years 1946 and 1947. The protected levy for Fayette County is 2.46 mills. It appears that in both years the county took more than its just share of inside millage, thus penalizing the other subdivisions."

Table 3 shows the total operating and maintenance expenditures of the general fund of this city reached $48,926.36 in 1940, was $57,865.45 in 1944, and $54,930.29 in 1945, while in 1946 it had mounted to $73,552.81, so that the city's expenses were 50.3 percent greater in 1946 than in 1940. It is explained that part of the big increase was due to paying $16,000 for parking meters.

The report makes comparisons of operation costs of seven Ohio cities of comparable size—Bucyrus (pop. 9,727), Troy (9,697), Dover

Grain Markets

CHICAGO, June 26—(AP)—Corn declining late in the session after establishing a new record high on the Board of Trade today. Wheat and oats also were generally lower, although at one time oats had fairly substantial gains.

At one time July corn reached $2.03½, a new all-time peak. All deferred deliveries of the yellow grain established new seasonal highs. Some profit-taking and reports of a less aggressive demand in the cash market created the late downturn.

Wheat closed ¼ lower to ¼ higher. July $2.17½-¼. Corn was 1 cent lower to ¼ higher, July $2.01½-2.01, and oats were ¼-½ lower, July 97½-¼.

Financial Market

NEW YORK, June 26—(AP)—Oils and special issues led the stock market on another selective recovery push today although the cloudy labor picture kept many potential purchasers in neutral territory.

With thousands of coal miners idle in protest against the new labor law, together with an east coast shipping strike, Wall Street exhibited considerable caution. Short covering and buying for investment yields served as the principal trend prop. Oils responded to brightening earnings prospects and a batch of good income statements aided rails.

In The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, June 26—(P)—The new labor law can stop a coal strike or any big strike—but only for awhile.

In the end—when all machinery set up under the law to stave off a strike is exhausted—workers are free to strike.

Here's an ABC on coal and the new law. Both will be in the news now. Any big strike could be handled the same way.

1. The law's machinery starts with the president. He has to decide whether a big strike will affect national health and safety.
2. If he thinks so, he appoints a special board of inquiry. The board investigates and reports to the president what it has found.
3. If the president still thinks the strike would create a national emergency, he tells the attorney general to act.
4. The attorney general asks a federal court judge to issue a court order—an injunction—to stop the strike.
5. When, and if, the injunction is issued, the union and the employer are supposed to get together to try to reach an agreement.
6. While the union-employer talks go on, the president calls back his special board of inquiry for further investigation.
7. The board must report back to the president within 60 days after the injunction is granted.
8. In its report the board must say what the latest offer of the employer was, such as a wage increase. The president can make the report of the board public.
9. Then the national labor relations board (NLRB), which administers the law, steps in. It conducts a vote in all the plants where the union members work.
10. The workers vote on whether to accept the employer's last offer or to follow the judgement of their leaders in rejecting it.
11. Once NLRB announces the result of the vote—even though it means a strike through not accepting the offer—the attorney general must ask the court to end the injunction against a strike.
12. That leaves the union free to strike. But the president must take one more step. He must report to Congress on the situation.

13. Then it's up to Congress either to do nothing, and let the strike occur, or pass a special law to prevent the strike.

If it passes such a law there's this question: Can any law compel people to work if they don't want to?

Perhaps 100 or more days will have elapsed between the time the president first set up the special inquiry board and when he turned the case over to Congress.

So the strike will have been delayed that long unless Congress in the end tries to pass a law to stop it altogether.

As to the coal case:

The government seized the mines a year ago when John L. Lewis and the mine owners couldn't agree on a contract.

The government made a contract with Lewis. It had seized the mines and made the contract under a wartime law.

But the law—and the contract with it—expire June 30. On July 1 the government must turn the mines back to the owners.

Under the government contract, the miners are allowed a 10-day vacation, starting June 27. They're due back July 8.

They start out while the government has the mines and are due to return when the owners have them.

But will they return July 8 if, by that time, the owners have not made a contract with Lewis? Probably not. In staying away they'll deny they're on strike. They'll say they can't work without a contract.

The president won't be able to tell till July 8 whether the country faces a coal strike. If he then starts the new law's machinery working the coal strike may be delayed until fall. Maybe.

If the miners stay away after July 8, the No. 1 problem will be: Can any injunction against a strike stop them from staying away?

90 Percent of Vet Amputees Restored to Civilian Life

By HAL BOYLE
MARE ISLAND, Calif. —(P)—It pays to rebuild war-damaged veterans—to make part-men whole again.

The navy has figures to prove it, based on 2,000 amputees who have passed through its rehabilitation centers at the Mare Island navy yard here for veterans who lost arms and legs in combat.

"We have found that 90 percent of the men trained here to use artificial arms and legs are employed and have made a readjustment to civilian life," said Commander Thomas J. Canty of Milwaukee, Wis., officer in charge of the amputee center.

"About five percent are having difficulties and require further hospital treatment. The remaining five percent are failures—men who simply have given up."

Canty said that each failure would represent a lifetime cost to the government of $70,000 to $100,000.

"So it has proved well worth while to the taxpayer," he said, "to spend the few thousand dollars necessary to rehabilitate the average amputee and restore him to a productive place in civilian life."

"Aside from the financial aspect, of course, this training gives him back his life—his self-respect. And our boys are doing well in every walk of life."

A former marine major who lost a leg in air combat is running an air line in Southern California. A legless marine sergeant is studying agriculture in a Texas college. A marine private who lost a leg above the knee is a bulldozer operator. They are typical of the amputee school graduates who are making good.

Because civilian manufacturers were unable to supply them with the quality of artificial arms and legs they felt were necessary, navy officers set up their own factory here. Now it is the largest in the country.

"The artificial limb business in America really was begun by amputee veterans after the Civil War," said Commander Canty. "And since then only minor improvements were made."

By substituting aluminum for steel and plastics for wood, the navy has managed to build a more flexible artificial leg and cut the weight from 12 to 15 pounds down to five to seven pounds. The lighter leg is less tiring and can be worn longer. A late model now being experimented with even is strapless—suction holds it to the leg stump.

"Through mass production we've cut the cost of making an artificial leg to $73.18," said Canty. "In small commercial shops it would cost $250 to $300."

The new legs emit no embarrassing creaks, and are well-balanced. The old model artificial foot made of wood with a split toe has been replaced by one that has a wooden base, felt toe and sponge rubber sole—to reduce jarring.

The improvement in artificial hands has been even more noteworthy, thanks partly to an ingenious new device by an inventive sailor who permits pulley-controlled metal fingers to grip and flex like a human hand. The metal fingers are covered by a glove-like plastic which the eye can hardly tell from flesh.

"We even put hair on the back of the plastic hand to make it look more lifelike," said Canty. Each artificial leg and arm is individually tailored to the patient by the surgeon and limb fitter. The whole staff is particularly proud of one young veteran who had lost both legs below the knee in combat. He quickly learned to dance as well as walk on his two new legs.

"Then," said Canty proudly,

"he went out and won a jitterbug contest."

What Price, War?

It is an indication of the state of the world today that every time someone makes a suggestion for world disarmament, it is received respectfully—but with complete pessimism as to the possibility of achieving it. No sane man can help but be appalled by the cost of the world's present military establishments, or by their obvious threat to a prolonged peace. But the hope that something tangible can be done to cure this—a hope that was held high at the end of World War I—is almost totally lacking now. The truth is that the world is actively engaged in an armament race which is of an unprecedented character.

In the last war, there were only two major new weapons—the atomic bomb and the German guided missiles. All other weapons simply represented developments of lethal instruments which had long been in existence and involved no revolutionary principles. Some basic weapons, such as the rifle, have been essentially unchanged in generations. And even a block-buster is simply an evolutionary advance on the small aerial bombs of the first war.

Today's armament race does not follow the classic pattern of attempting to produce and store more standard weapons than the competing nations. Its emphasis is largely on new weapons. As a consequence much of the race is being run in the laboratories—rather than in the munitions factories.

This, of course, is particularly true of atomic weapons. Our atomic bomb plants are still going at full capacity, and the work being done is as completely shrouded in secrecy as in wartime. The Russians are known to have put a number of the leading German nuclear physicists to work on atomic research, and to have given it highest priority among their own scientists. No one outside of Russia knows just how much progress has been made.

It would be a grave mistake, however, to let the terrible potentialities of atomic power blind us to other possible innovations in the bloody art of warfare. Our own army has been carrying on extensive experiments with guided missiles, using the seized German equipment, and other armies are unquestionably following suit. This is one of the most ominous weapons yet devised, and some experts believe that had the European war lasted another year or so, German technicians might have been able to develop it to the point where it would have crushed England. When the latest type of bombs appeared, England established a strict censorship to keep knowledge of the damage done from becoming known to the world. These weapons were particularly terrifying in that their speed was so great they outran their own sound. Thus, the explosion took place before the missile was ever heard. What kept them from becoming a decisive factor was their inaccuracy. They could be aimed to hit a section of a city—but they could not be controlled with sufficient accuracy to strike a particular target, such as a power plant or an arsenal. Present efforts are directed at perfecting the guiding equipment and giving them the accuracy of artillery.

Witty, amusing, genial, your friends like and admire you. You have a brilliant mind and like to read and mingle with intellectual people. You will be unusually happy in your married life. The day will be good, although it may be difficult for others. Attend to things personally, and be on the lookout for an opportunity. In spite of an element of disappointment, love affairs are well signified in your next year. You can court and marry. Also interesting new friendships will be made, and business prosper. Today's child will have rather unusual and often romantic experiences during life. Love affairs and marriage will play an unusually important part.

ly advanced radio equipment, is another subject of intensive research. Planes are infinitely cheaper and more abundant than crews—at the end of the last war we were producing aircraft much more rapidly than we could train men to man them. If a truly efficient and reliable pilotless air force could be developed, the deadliness of war in the air would be multiplied manifold. Enormous fleets could be sent against enemy targets, and the losses would be in material, not in men.

At intervals there is discussion of the possibilities of bacteriological warfare. Even in the first war it was rumored to be impending, though nothing came of it. The problems in the way are enormous—foremost among them being some means of protecting the user's own people from retaliation in kind. Germs do not respect boundaries. Again, means of distributing bacteria may be an unsolved problem. But in these days, when science seems to be on the verge of outdistancing the ability of man to control it, no innovation can be considered impossible. And no one can believe that in a war of extermination, any belligerent would let moral scruple stand in the way of the employment of any killer.

This is a hard disease to live with, causing almost constant coughing, with the bringing up of much sputum or fluid material from the lungs together with occasional bleeding. It is doubly unfortunate that most of its victims are young, because it saps strength and energy and paralyzes ambition.

A little news has seeped out concerning the U. S. War Department's plans in the event of another war. The atomic bomb has made it necessary to plan on the widest possible decentralization of authority—if one city or a dozen cities were wiped out, there would have to be a super command post ready to take over elsewhere. There has been much serious discussion of putting certain essential industrial plants underground, either in natural or constructed caves. The cost of this would be incredible—but no one yet seems to have devised any other defense against the A-bomb.

Perhaps the almost inconceivable destructiveness of weapons now being developed will, in the long run, be an assurance of peace—for the simple reason that another war might literally mean the destruction of civilization. General Eisenhower touched on this vividly, when he said: "The earth may become a flowering garden or a sterile desert—and we may make the difference."

Give boys living things for pets, and they're happy. But too many grownups have forgotten that.

There is a tide in the affairs of men which make it just too bad for ordinary affairs when hot weather comes.

A Letter from Washington

By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON — Sir John Boyd Orr, head of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, sees food as the starting point for working out a pattern for world peace.

"If the nations cannot work together on food, they can work together on nothing," he says, adding:

"If governments do not give wholehearted cooperation to the beginnings of a food plan for the benefit of the people of the world, there is no alternate to a third world war."

Sir John's greatest concern now is in the setting up of a World Food Council to help FAO integrate national nutritional and agricultural production programs. Recommendations for the setting up of this Council have been sent to member governments with meeting at the annual FAO conference at Geneva, Aug. 26.

Sir John believes the entire world food program hinges on the forthcoming conference.

"It is one more test, a crucial test," says Sir John, "of the willingness of the nations to cooperate on practical measures for providing food for the people and prosperity for the food producers, and at the same time opening up great new markets for industrial products which will help to maintain full employment."

An internationally famous nutritionist as well as a practical farmer, Sir John nevertheless gives little thought to his own nourishment.

Constant Coughing Lung Disorder

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

BRONCHIECTASIS is a disorder of the bronchi or tubes in the lungs. In this condition, the bronchi are dilated or enlarged and there are inflammation and destruction of tissue.

This is a hard disease to live with, causing almost constant coughing, with the bringing up of much sputum or fluid material from the lungs together with occasional bleeding. It is doubly unfortunate that most of its victims are young, because it saps strength and energy and paralyzes ambition.

Prolonged Sickness

Causing prolonged and recurrent sickness, it is a drain on the patient's finances and limits his social activities. For these reasons and because it interferes so greatly with normal living, Dr. Oster A. Abbott of Georgia believes that every possible effort should be made to prevent bronchiectasis.

Its exact cause is not known but it is thought that perhaps the contagious diseases of childhood, such as measles and whooping cough, particularly where they are complicated by pneumonia, may sometimes be responsible. Long continued infection of the nasal sinuses is another cause.

Early Discovery

Since there is no form of treatment which will permanently overcome bronchiectasis, it is doubly important that it be discovered early, and measures be employed to prevent further damage to the lung tissues from coughing.

It would seem important that the

Cussins & Fearn Cut Tire Prices

New price reductions on tires today are being advertised by Cussins & Fearn which, the merchandise manager says, "place price levels below C & F prewar catalog prices on Columbia first line deluxe quality tires."

"Our first price reduction met with such splendid success," he explained, "that we find . . . we are now in a position to pass on savings we make in the form of lower prices."

Reduced factory cost and "economical mass retail distributions methods" were credited with making the reductions possible. New price reductions have just been received from a central Ohio tire producer, the merchandise manager said.

While it was pointed out that "every tire is installed free when so desired," it was emphasized that there are "no free merchandise deals, no free tube offers and no second or third line tires offered."

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT
LOSS. DIANE'S step halted. If, when she and Bill had last seen her, she had not seen it ther for her stony blindness, stunned, light-tipped as her own in grief, hard as her own with a bitter, terrible rebellion. With a little moan she dropped down on the bank at the side of the road, covered her face with her hands. Oh, why hadn't she known that he was suffering the same bleak anguish that she did? Of course! Of course! Nellie was his baby! In each other's arms they'd have found some comfort. Instead she had cried: "Don't touch me!" Built a thick wall of the tragic circumstances. After that, was there anything she could say to Bill?

It was a long interval before she roused. When she did it was first a faint, detached surprise at finding herself on the bank of the hillroad, as if her mind and heart had been too far away for it to be possible. She looked around her, to place her whereabouts. Through the trees she could see the roof of the little house and her eyes followed its outline, fell lower to the lane which led to the house. Then she sprang to her feet, trembling. A car was standing where Rufus usually left his car, but it was not Rufus'. With a little cry she began to run down the hill. She spoke aloud as she ran, in broken, breathless snatches of words. "It isn't—it's too wonderful to happen—he doesn't know—if it is he, he's only come—he thinks—oh, what will he say?"

She was panting when she reached the lane; each breath was a stab against her ribs. No one was in sight, but it was Bill's car and she called his name. "Bill!" He came out of the door and a few steps toward her before he halted to stiffen as she had seen him stiffen so often. She remembered and stopped, the old child plunging icily through her warm veins. He said: "You are doubtless surprised to see me!" "How did you know I was here?" Her voice as cold as his. "I've known all week. Your father told me as soon as he knew." "He promised—" "You were not frank with him, so I don't think you can hold that against him!" "Did he send you here?" "No. Though I think he'd agree with me that it can't go on like this!" "It can't—like this!" Diane cried with a sudden impatient fury at herself as well as Bill. "Standing like this! Talking like this! We're a little absurd!" She lifted her chin, walked toward him, her face pale with resolution, her hands clenched to hold to her courage. But close to him she saw what she had not, at first, the dark hurt in his eyes which his lips were trying to deny, the deep lines of it along his tight lips. She could not bear that, with a little sound of remorse she put her face into his shoulder. Against it she felt the leap of his heart and she whispered: "Bill, Bill!"

"I've had an awful week, Di." Bill said a little later. They had gone into the parlor and were sitting on the settee, Diane's hand in his.

"Do you think it hasn't been awful for me?" But, aloud, she answered: "Maybe we needed something like this."

Bill's laugh, cutting in to deprecate that, was expressive of rebuke. "Couldn't you have devised less dramatic means to reach it? I had hard work explaining to Carrie that next morning, that you'd gone on a trip. To my family, too."

His pride, Diane thought, with a faint discouragement. Must be reason that it had acted to hide failure to the last possible moment, because Bill hated failure? Must she take his reproaches meekly? She had felt his arms around her again, his lips on hers, the surge of his passion in their touch, but she had not reached him!

"It was very unfair in you to think I'd take any part in that suit against your father," he continued in the same tone of restrained rebuke. He could not see her face and, when she said nothing, he added: "As to that, Dean's been in conference with your father's lawyers and he's convinced that the plaintiff hasn't any case."

"You mean there won't be a trial, with everyone against Dad?" "That's what I'm saying. Weren't you listening?"

"The man with a gun," Diane repeated, with a little smile. Bill had expected a more definite expression of relief.

"What's that, Di?" "Something Rufus said about Dad." She drew suddenly away from him, drew her hand from his. "Bill, you must know it was Rufus who brought me here. He saw me at the station that night and he wouldn't let me take the train. I wouldn't let him take me back to the apartment. So we—came here."

She averted her face and waited, afraid again of what he would say, of what she would answer when he said it.

He laughed with some scorn. "Rufus, the great humanitarian! What role will he play next?" His tone eased. "I'm not asking you again how you feel toward Rufus—you told me and I believe you—but I wonder if he hasn't more than brotherly interest in you? It doesn't matter, though, for he's going away again. It was in the Post yesterday, with a column lauding him to the skies. To Spain this time."

"Oh, no," cried Diane, unbelieving. "He didn't tell me! I saw him just this morning!"

Bill was regarding her stricken face. He said, too evenly: "Do you care so much, Di?"

Now he waited while Diane considered the answer she would make. Her glance was lowered and the dark fringe of her lashes hid from him any sign of what she was thinking; her lips, for a moment before they straightened, were very tender and the tenderness was for Rufus, he knew.

Then she lifted her head. "I am very fond of Rufus," she said slowly. "I shall always be, even if I never see him again. I shall miss him terribly. But—" Her eyes darkened with a desperate earnestness and her breath caught audibly. "But it will not be like, oh, not anything like the feeling of these last months, the awful feeling. Bill, that you were right with me yet so far away that I couldn't find you! And then—that I'd lost you!"

"Di, Di," Bill groaned. "What was the matter with us? I felt that way about you, too. What were we doing?"

"Yes. What?" They stared at each other in shocked realization; instinctively their hands gripped.

"It was my fault, Di. My pride and my self-assertiveness. When I read that note you left and knew you believed I cared more for that lawsuit—that, maybe, I'd given you good reason to believe it—I wasn't going to have a chance to make you see that that isn't so, that I love you more than anything."

Diane pulled his head down to her. She did not want him to say more; she had no claim to triumph. She said quickly, in a low, shaken tone: "Bill, we both made mistakes. We may again. We'll to each other that hurt, but if we remember what you said, that each loves the other more than anything—" her arm tightened about him, "—we won't get lost!"

He lifted his head, after a long moment, with an apologetic laugh. "Irrelevant, wholly, but, Di, I'm hungry as a wolf. I don't think I've eaten anything this week!"

Diane released him. "My poor Bill! I'll fix something at once." "Here? No, let's drive in."

"Bill, please! We can eat under the trees. Oh, don't let's hurry back—"

"As you like, darling."

She was touched by this instant yielding. Assembling what the cupboards offered, putting coffee on, taking down plates and cups, she kept thinking of it. "But I mustn't let it be all on his side!"

Bill was exploring the sheds and the old barns. He came to the door as she was putting their food on a tray.

"You know, Di, this place has possibilities!"

"It has, hasn't it?" And then she said: "Here, tote this out."

He looked down at the tray and exclaimed in pleased anticipation: "Stuffed eggs! You're a wonder, Di!"

"Everything you like, Bill."

New Labor Law Analyzed - What It Means

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(P)—The new labor law says that, from now on, unions as well as management may be guilty of "unfair labor" practices.

An employer can take action to stop some of the "unfair" things and, in some cases, if he's injured by them he can sue the unions for damages.

This is the first time unions have to answer for "unfair" tactics.

Under the previous labor law—the Wagner Act, which has been law 12 years—only an employer could be charged with "unfair" practices.

The new law lists ten "unfair" practices by unions which the government, through the national labor relations board (NLRB) can step in to stop.

The NLRB not only can order them stopped but is required, if necessary, to get an order, or injunction, from a federal court to force them to be stopped.

Of the ten, four are not only subject to such action by the NLRB but an employer, injured by the "unfair" union actions, can sue for damages.

Those four are:

1. Jurisdictional strike—where a union tries to force an employer to assign work to it instead of to another union.

2. Strike or boycott—where a union tries to force a small tradesman, like a storekeeper or trucker, to join a union.

3. Strike or boycott—where a union tries to prevent one company from dealing with, or handling the products of, another.

4. Strike to force an employer to bargain with one union if the NLRB has approved another union as the one to bargain with the employer.

Under the Wagner Act and employer could be charged with "unfair" tactics if he tried to prevent a worker from joining a union or tried to run them, or fired a man for his union activities.

In such cases the NLRB could step in and order an employer to stop it. Now, under the new law, the NLRB can step in and tell a union to stop if it commits any of these six "unfair" practices:

1. Trying to "restrain or coerce" workers in their right to join or not join a union.

2. Trying to "restrain or coerce" an employer in his choice of a union with which to do business.

Example: In some industry a union wants to do business with a group of employers at one time, instead of with each employer separately. Under the new law it can't strike to force some single employer to deal with it as part of the group.

3. Refusing to bargain with an employer. A union can't change or end a contract without 60 days' notice. An employer has to bargain with a union, too.

4. Trying to make an employer pay for services not performed. This is aimed at "featherbedding." That means: Paying a unionist to stand by while someone else does the work.

5. Forcing an employer to fire a union-shop employee who has been denied membership for any reason except non-payment of union dues or fees.

(A union shop is one where every worker hired must, within a certain time join the union. Under the new law, once he joins the boss doesn't have to fire him if he's expelled for any other reason other than failure to pay dues.)

6. Trying to charge "excessive or discriminatory" fees for union membership where there is a union shop. The NLRB decides what is excessive.

The list of unfair labor practices by employers has been changed in some ways.

For example: Under the new law the closed shop is banned. That's where none but union members can be hired and all workers must be union members.

Now it's an unfair labor practice for an employer to hire only union members.

The union shop, described above, is permitted only if a majority of all the workers in the place—not just those voting—vote for a union shop.

"Unfair" labor practices were bidden as soon as the labor act became law yesterday but government action can't be taken for sixty days, or Aug. 22.

In other words: If there's an "unfair labor" practice between now and Aug. 22 no action can be taken until then. But it can be taken then on an action committed between now and then.

Well Pollution Warning Given By Dr. Bolton

Dangers of Shallow Wells Pointed Out By Sanitarian

With the large amount of rainfall this spring, there is an increasing danger of pollution of wells throughout the county, a communication from the State Health Department stated, as Dr. William Bolton, county sanitarian pointed out today the danger of typhoid and other communicable diseases which may be contracted from these wells.

Suspicious water should be boiled before use, the health department said. Dr. Bolton pointed out that the sanitarian's office will inspect and taste any well on application by the owner. He also said that a doctor's or nurse's report of a suspicious well will bring an inspection from his department.

Several hints on increasing the safety of drinking water were mentioned by Dr. Bolton. Two quarts of a five percent chlorine solution, such as Roman Cleanser or Chlorox added to any average well will insure almost purification, he said.

One mistake which a number of people make, said Dr. Bolton, is in confusing regular slake lime with a 50 percent chlorine lime mixture. Ordinary slake lime does not insure any degree of sterilization while the chlorine lime acts in the same way the chlorine solutions do.

The dug well, the most common type, said Dr. Bolton, is the most subject to pollution and should be watched carefully. The driven well is fairly safe, he said, while the drilled well is almost entirely safe, since the water is obtained from beneath a protecting rock strata and unless the vein is polluted, which is very unusual, the water will be safe.

There are no reliable well treaters left in the county, said Dr. Bolton, and none which the county health department is willing to recommend. He stated that the reason no regular district check of drinking water is made is the insufficient manpower to do such testing. "A. Welch, county health commissioner, said that the rate of communicable diseases to date has been so low that now compulsory vaccination has been thought necessary. However, he said that anyone who felt it necessary should consult their family physician.

Carmen Franco Knows What's Cookin' in Spain

Dictator's Daughter Graduate of Social Service School

MADRID—Carmen Franco, only child of Generalissimo Franco, is the most publicized graduate of the Falange social service school. She recently finished her nine-month course amid much publicity.

All Spanish women between 18 and 25 must complete the course arranged by the feminine section of the Falange, Spain's totalitarian state party, in order to obtain a university degree, a passport, or to compete in examinations for government or quasi-government jobs.

Miss Franco, who will be 21 in September, attended a Falange academy in the village of El Pardo which surrounds the palace residence of her father. The social service course is designed to complete the education of Spanish women.

A day in the life of the Generalissimo's daughter, as described by the Spanish press, started at 8 A. M. with calisthenics in the courtyard of the school. The rest of the morning was spent in the kitchen of the academy where meals and hot lunches are prepared for poor children and expectant mothers. The students then served the lunches in the dining room. During the afternoon there were classes in music, singing, public speaking and "political orientation."

Fellow students said Miss Franco was an enthusiastic cook.

"At home we have a small kitchen where I always like to spend time cooking," one weekly magazine quoted Carmen as saying.

Show For Bride To Be

Miss Erma Lee Showen and Miss Charlotte Sheley were hostesses at the home of Miss Sheley for a shower honoring Miss Marcella Cline, bride-to-be of Mr. Maurice Porter.

Three contests were arranged for the pleasure of the group and prizes in these were awarded Miss Joan Frisby, Miss Betty Williams, and Miss Vivian Gray, who presented them to the honored guest.

A pink and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations. On the table holding her lovely array of gifts, was arranged an umbrella, with streamers extending to each corner. Lovely spring flowers were placed at vantage points throughout the home. Following the presentation the honor guest responded to each graciously.

A tempting refreshment course was served by the hostesses further carrying out the dainty color scheme, to complete the pleasant evening.

Invited guests were Miss Ella Mae Ray, Osborn; Miss Polly Newland, Greenfield; Miss Eleanor Lacy, Alexandria; Mrs. Bill Burkhalter, Wilmington; Misses Betty Bennett, Elnoma Newman, Ann Haines, Joan Frisby, Vivian Gray, Joy Dun Betty Bottenfield, Susie Dufau, June Bandy, Esther Yarger, Gloria Morrow, Mary Jane Wilson, Albertine Rittenhouse, Charlotte Rittenhouse, Betty Graves, Patty Barlow, Marian West, Vera Daughtrey, Mary Alice Elrod, Mrs. Vaughn Ewing, Mrs. Willard Haines, Mrs. Irene Cline, Mr. Florence Glass, Mrs. Garnet Sheley, Mrs. Marguerite Showen, Miss Betty Williams and Mrs. Fannie Bandy.

Loyal Girls Meet

The Loyal Girls of the Church of Christ, with their teacher, Rev. Dan Mayer, were entertained Wednesday evening by the Loyal Daughters Class, losers of a contest which ended Mother's Day. The honored guests were greeted by the hostesses at the door as they entered and each received a corsage of roses, honeysuckle and yellow daisies, given to them by the corsage committee, Mrs. F. C. Thornhill and Mrs. Bessie Tysor.

The church was beautifully decorated in yellow and white with spring flowers at different places. The welcome was given by the president, Mrs. Ethel Ray, and the response by Mrs. Dale Ray.

The entertainment was led by Mrs. Ruth Fenner with different games and was much enjoyed.

Ice cream, cake, mints and coffee was served by Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. F. M. Clark, Mrs. Hugh Zimmerman, Miss Vesta Sparks, Mrs. Charles Gallagher, Mrs. Irene Cline, and Mrs. Ira Eckle. Welcome visitors for the occasion were Mr. F. M. Clark, Mr. E. D. Snyder, Mrs. Dan Mayer, Miss

Jo Ann Mayer, and Mr. Charles Glass.

At the close of the happy time Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Cora Paye gave recitations. Mrs. Grace Yarger of the Loyal Girls presented the Loyal Daughters, a beautiful picture of "Christ in Meditation."

Father's Day Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Gail Wolfe had as their Father's Day guests, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wolfe and daughters, Sharon Lynn and Peggy Lou, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Johnson and daughter, Ann.

Makes Tour With Choir

Miss Janet Fenner of Capital University, Columbus, was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fenner. On Monday she returned to Columbus, accompanied by her parents, where Mrs. Fenner attended a tea at Troutman Hall, given by Phi Beta Fraternity, honoring their mothers.

On Tuesday Miss Fenner left Columbus with the University Chapel Choir for a seven weeks tour of western states. Some of the high points of the tour are Phoenix, Arizona; Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Dallas and San Antonio, Texas; Long Beach, Los Angeles and San Diego, California; Boulder, Colorado; Valley City, North Dakota; St. Paul, Minnesota; St. Claire, Wisconsin. The tour will end with a concert at Lakeside, Ohio, on July 28.

Company M is After 25 More Men at Once

Much Equipment Will Reach ONG Unit During July

Captain Darrell Williams, commanding officer of Company M Ohio National Guard which was organized here recently, said Thursday that the present strength of the company is 25 men and three officers, and he is anxious to have 25 additional recruits as soon as possible, to bring the company up to one-third of the final strength of 150 men.

Tuesday nights are drill nights and prospective recruits may apply at the armory at that time, or see one of the officers—Capt. Williams or First Lieutenants Homer Davis and Robert Allen.

First Lieut. Allen was recently appointed and held the post of First Lieutenant in the U. S. Signal Corps, during the recent war.

Capt. Williams said that first equipment for the new company is expected around July 10, and will consist of several jeeps, possibly other rolling stock; several machine guns, both water and air

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 60 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Eddie R. Moots Holds Record

Youngest Aviation
Student Here

Two months ago when 11-year-old Eddie Ray Moots, 219 West Elm Street took his first airplane ride in a Cessna, he knew that flying would be his career and since then, he has been taking flying lessons at the Washington Air Park, the youngest student there.

So far, Eddie has had two lessons in the air with George Collins, of Greenfield, his instructor. He stays for half an hour at a time, every Thursday afternoon. He also spends a good deal of time at the air park doing ground work with Oscar Bjornsen, mechanic. The plane Eddie is learning in is an Aeronca, which is similar to a "Piper Cub."

"As soon as I took my first flight, I knew I was born for the air," said Eddie. He said that he was told he could get his license at 16 and under very unusual circumstances, at 13. The only way he could get his license at 13 would be to solo and do stunts properly at that time.
Eddie does not want a career as a commercial pilot, but instead wants to be a fighter pilot when he has completed his training.

Moore & Briggs Store Expands With Business

Basement Remodeled And Furniture Stock Being Rearranged

The expansion and rearrangement of the Moore & Briggs Furniture Store on East Court Street today was complete, except possibly for a few minor details.

Work has been going on quietly without interrupting the daily routine of business for several weeks.

The basement, which had been used only for storage, has been remodeled. A new stairway has been put in and now the basement, with its modern lighting, becomes another show room of the store, nearly doubling the floor space for display. Home appliances, kitchen furniture and fixtures and furniture for the nursery and children's play rooms have been placed in the basement.

On the main floor, is the complete line of furniture and furnishings for the home—living room, dining room and bed room. Floor coverings have been added in an increased assortment.

For better display, the furniture has been arranged as it would be in rooms to give a better conception of the effect of the ensemble in the home.

Hubert Moore and Wendell Briggs opened the store in the ground room of Memorial Hall about two years ago, just after the war. It was small in the beginning when furniture was scarce and hard to get. But, as more merchandise began to reach the market, their store kept growing slowly but surely. The present expansion is the result.

The proprietors did nearly everything themselves during the early months of the store, but recently have increased the personnel. Within the last two months, as the remodeling and expansion progressed, Leo McDaniels and Larry Hunter have gone on the floor as salesmen.

Veterans Eligible For Many Positions

Fayette County veterans are eligible to apply for jobs as coal burning firemen, oil burning firemen, assistant pumpboat engineers or derrickboat operators, officials at the Huntington District Corps of Engineers said today as they announced that applications are being taken for these jobs now.

These temporary appointments do not require a written examination and will be effective only until the Civil Service Commission sets up a permanent register for these jobs. The jobs will be at the Huntington, West Virginia engineer district.

Information and application blanks may be obtained from the post office here.

'Thaw' Is Ordered On Liquor Permits

COLUMBUS, June 26—(AP)—The State Liquor Board today ended the war-time "freeze" on issuance of new permits to sell whiskey by the glass and for night clubs.

The action, resulting from a board hearing June 11, will become effective Sept. 15.

Ralph Dombey, acting director of the department, said no applications would be accepted until Sept. 1. Any received before then,

Walter W. Mitchell, board chairman, said the effective date was set so far ahead in order to give the enforcement division time to complete its reorganization under Acting Chief Floyd Moon, borrowed from the State Highway Patrol.

Hunting Season Cut in Ohio for Conservation

Views of Farmers And Sportsmen Are Given Consideration

Sportsmen of this community will be interested in knowing that the Ohio Conservation and Natural Resources Commission made drastic cuts in the 1947 rabbit and pheasant hunting season by setting tentative regulations which reduced the season on pheasants to seven hunting days and on rabbits to 25 hunting days.

At the same time decision was readied to follow recommendations made by farmers and sportsmen delegates attending the public game hearing last week to have a closed season on skunks during the coming fall and winter, and also on Hungarian partridges.

This action, to halt the rapid decline in Ohio's popular small game population, followed intensive game kill surveys and population estimates from all parts of the state which have indicated that three consecutive years of cold and wet nesting and breeding seasons, increased hunting pressure and disappearing cover and habitat brought on by heavy wartime agricultural demands, have lowered the game population to a point of danger. The season last year on pheasant included 14 hunting days and on rabbit, 41 days.

Tentatively the 1947 season dates are November 15 to November 22 on pheasant and November 15 to December 13 for rabbit, all dates inclusive. The daily bag limit of four rabbits and two pheasants and possession limits of four rabbits and two pheasants were not changed. Daily hunting hours were changed to 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. including the opening day.

The sentiment expressed by the Conservation Advisory Committee, consisting of one farmer and one sportsman representative from each of the seven conservation districts in the state at the annual public game hearing last week in Columbus together with comments from the general public at the hearing indicated that hunters generally would favor stringent restrictions that will help get Ohio's game population out of its present slump.

There was no open season on skunk last year in district 7 comprised of the 13 counties in southern Ohio. Indications are that the skunk population has dropped so rapidly in the past several years that this wildlife family is threatened with extinction.

Other regulations set by the commission last week, tentatively, named September 13 to 27 as the open season on squirrel for the entire state leaving the daily bag limit at four and possession limit four. No change was made in trapping seasons or bag limits except that the Lake Erie Trapping District opening date was changed to November 15 for mink and muskrat to coincide with the opening date of the Inland Trapping District. The closing date in the Lake Erie District remains at March 15 while the closing date for the Inland District is January 15. Bag or possession limits or raccoon were not changed.

No official decision was made on the recommendations of delegates in northeastern Ohio suggesting an open deer season in

Soviet Opposition To Plan Revealed

LONDON, June 26 — (P) — Pravda, the Communist Party organ in Russia, dashed cold water today on the warm, friendly feeling which has encompassed Europe since the Soviet Union accepted last Sunday a British-French invitation to talk about the Marshall aid-Europe plan.

With Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov reportedly scheduled to leave tomorrow for Paris, where the three-power talks will get under way Friday, Pravda said no self-respecting European nation could accept the Marshall proposals if acceptance meant American interference in the internal affairs of those nations.

Pravda expressed its belief that American business would benefit from the program.

Pravda expressed its belief that American business would benefit from the program.

several northwestern counties. Indications are that the commission will consider some kind of action at the July meeting.

All hunting and trapping regulations receiving action at the June meeting remain tentative and are subject to official vote of the commission at its July session before orders are written making them law.

Draft Dodging Probe Sought

WASHINGTON, June 26 — (P) — A broad Congressional investigation of Serge Rubinstein, New York financier convicted of draft evasion, was asked yesterday by Rep. Buck (R-N. Y.).

He introduced two resolutions, both of which would direct the State and Justice department to turn over to the House judiciary committee their complete files on all investigations of Rubinstein's affairs, including "alleged expenditures for the purchase of influence" in Washington.

The House committee, among other things, would be directed to look into "the delay of 15 months" in bringing Rubinstein to trial on draft charges, and "the assignment of Judge James F. T. O'Connor" to hear the case.

TO ACQUIRE LAND HILLSBORO — The Conservation and Natural Resources Department has filed suit to acquire 130 acres of land owned by Burch Parshall and wife, for use in the lake project. The Parshalls had been offered $16,248 for the tract.

The tobacco plant was brought to Europe in 1558 by Francisco

Fernandes, sent by Philip II of Spain to investigate the products of Mexico.

Corn Planting Is Completed In Community

Nearly All Soybeans Sown and Hay is Being Harvested

The week or 10 days of good weather has given farmers a chance to complete their corn planting, as well as most of their soybean sowing, and now the work of cultivating early planted corn is under way, as well as harvesting an unusually good crop of hay of various kinds.

There is still some plowing to be done, chiefly for soybeans, and in some instances the ground is so hard, following the long series of rains, that it is almost impossible to keep the plow in the ground.

Many farmers who had not completed their corn planting, plowing and soybean sowing, worked throughout Sunday to finish the work.

Part of the corn represents one of the latest plantings on record, and now farmers are hopeful that "one extreme follows another" and that the fall will be late, inasmuch as the season to-date has been unusually cool.

A late fall may see one of the largest corn crops grown in the community in many years, similar to the big crop following the late planting last year.

Haymaking will require a great deal of work during the next few weeks.

Regardless of cool nights, corn has been making a very rapid growth.

Wheat harvest is still 10 days to two weeks distant in most of the county, and most of it gives indication of a heavy yield.

Pedestrians Crazy Says Safety Chief

CINCINNATI, June 26—(AP)—Paul Jones, public information director of the National Safety Council, says pedestrians are "the craziest people you're ever likely to run into."

Pedestrians, Jones told a Kiwanis Club safety meeting, are harder to get along with than automobile drivers. Car drivers, he asserted, expect trouble with the law when they violate regulations, "but the pedestrian, jealous of his divine right to walk, raises red when you try to keep him in line."

"You ask the darn fools not to kill themselves and they resent it," he added.

Dresses Made by Club Are Inspected

Dresses made by the Madison Homemakers were inspected by their leader, Barbara Lee Clark, at a meeting at the Madison Mills School.

It was also decided that girls in the first year sewing class will have their third and final article for the year finished by the next meeting, which will be Tuesday at the school building.

Captured Nazi Sub To Be Shown Here

Captured two-man midget U-boat is inspected by British officers in gigantic shelter at Kiel. Delivered in sections, the U-boat was assembled there. Called the Seehund, midget is 39 feet long and is powered by Diesel engine and electric motor. Speed upon surface is 8 knots; submerged, 3 to 4 knots. It has two torpedoes.

A captured German midget submarine will be exhibited from 10 A. M. until 10 P. M. July 2 at Court Street and Main Street in front of the Court House by the Navy Club of USA, where visitors may go through the ship.

There is no admission charge, but voluntary donations will be accepted and funds raised will go to help the Navy Club carry on its welfare and rehabilitation program.

The midget submarine was known as the "Unter Seehund" and was one of the secret weapons which the Nazis developed during World War II. The Seehund is 39 feet long, weighs 21 tons and carries two full-sized torpedoes, each 22 feet long. The submarine, which was operated by two men, had a speed of eight knots on the surface and four knots submerged.

Legionnaires Win From Morton Crew

When the Morton defenses fell apart temporarily in the fifth inning, the Hughey Legion post team tallied three runs on one hit and three errors to win Wednesday night's City League softball game, 3 to 1.

Morton's only run came in the ninth inning when Thornton smacked a home run far back in to the shadows of left-center field.

It was a pitcher's battle between Reno of the Legion and Self of Morton's. Reno pitched hitless ball for five innings and the first solid bingle the Legionnaires got off Self was a sharp crack through shortstop by Morton's during the wild base running spree by the veterans in the fifth. Reno sent eight of the Morton crew down swinging at his fireball.

Self did his best to win his own game by hitting a triple to left in the sixth.

Snappy Kate Wins Another

Horses from Washington C. H. are getting their full share of cash and glory at the Troy harness race meeting.

Wednesday night it was Snappy Kate that came through with another win. Driven by Frank Lanum, who had trained her at the Fairground here, Snappy Kate won the 18 class trot from a field of six of the better trotters at the meeting. Covering the mile in 2:12, she paid her $2 mutual backers $5.20, $3 and $2.40 across the board.

Snappy Kate, owned by Frank Junk and Sons, has started five times at Troy and has won three and finished second twice. Always a high-strung mare, but with speed to spare when she could be settled, she was started on her racing career, first by G. Damon Baker and then by the

Double Feature Softball Program Here Friday Night

The double feature softball program for Wilson Field Friday night today was completed.

The Xenia Elks' team has been booked for the seven-inning curtain raiser with the Hughey Legion post outfit, co-leader of the City League.

For the nightcap, the Lawson Legion post's team is to meet the Hughes Brothers crew from Wilmington.

Both of the visiting teams have records of successful performance this season.

The Xenia Elks have lost but one game and are tied for the lead in that city's Industrial League with the VFW team that beat them. By way of comparison, the Xenia VFW shut out 6 to 0 the Dayton DP & L team that the Hughey post veterans beat here last Friday night.

The Hughes outfit is a front runner in the Wilmington and Tri-County circuits.

The two Washington C. H. Legion teams are tied for first in the City League.

No admission is to be charged, but a collection is to be taken at the gate just as last Friday when the contribution amounted to $69.

The money goes into the fund for carrying on the city's recreation program.

Council Takes Another Step For Incinerator

Ordinance For North End Sewer Passed At Session

At the Wednesday night session of council added impetus was given a movement to obtain an incinerator to dispose of garbage and refuse in Washington C. H. and action taken to bring Alden Stillson, well known Columbus engineer, to the next session for the purpose of discussing incineration and probable cost of a plant for this city.

At the same session Fred Rost, executive secretary of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce, presented a summary of fiscal operations of the city, compiled by the Local Government Tax Service of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, praising the officials for their good work handling the business of the city.

The matter of an incinerator for the city was launched by councilman Roy Baughn, who said that something should be done to get rid of the city dump nuisance, and that he would like to see a bond issue submitted to the voters at the next election for installing an incinerator to dispose of garbage and refuse.

Baughn asked that data be obtained and that if the project is found practical, then get the bond issue proposal on the ballot at the November election.

Councilman Richard Willis said that he wanted more information on an incinerator and cost of operation before he would vote for submitting the question to the citizens for approval.

It was brought out that 144 towns in Wisconsin levy taxes for garbage disposal.

Chairman Robert Sites stated that disposal of garbage, and refuse by an incinerator is coming sooner or later.

City Engineer Norman E. Meranda said he and City Manager W. W. Hill had made an inspection of the city dump recently, and agreed that another year at most was all the present dump could be used.

Rost stated that the Chamber of Commerce is back of such a move to handle the garbage and refuse problem.

Meranda said that so far no response had been received from the federal government regarding payment of costs for a preliminary survey for garbage and refuse disposal, which had been asked three months ago.

City Auditor Miss Melvin, who is also clerk of council, told councilmen that several calls are received daily from persons inquiring about garbage collection.

Council passed an ordinance to license mechanical musical devices (juke boxes) requiring a $10 license for each instrument yearly, whether it is operated in public places or clubs, and providing up to $250 fine for failure to have such devices licensed.

An other ordinance to proceed with the North End sewer was also placed on its various readings and passed. The ordinance is in accordance with plans and specifications on file with the City Engineer, and provides for levying special assessments payable in cash or in 10 annual installments. It also provides for issuing bonds of the city to pay costs, the bonds to be retired by the collection of special assessments levied against abutting property owners.

The three were coming here for the marriage of Mrs. Hyer's daughter, Miss Marilyn Milner, and Lincoln Schwartz in the First Presbyterian Church here Sunday afternoon.

Several Stores Still Restrict Sale of Sugar

Demand Is Settling Back to Normal, However

A survey of Washington C. H. food stores Thursday, showed that although the rush for sugar has subsided somewhat, most stores still maintain self-imposed rationing, following the lifting of sugar controls by the government on June 12.

Several of the retailers interviewed said that the rush had subsided to the point where it is about normal, but another dealer said that his store had been swamped with orders for sugar ever since rationing was lifted and had not subsided since then.

One retailer said that his store was getting only about half the sugar ordered from his wholesaler and that he had imposed a limit of five pounds to a customer, at least until the situation with the wholesaler is eased somewhat. He said that he was expecting a large shipment this week.

Another retailer said that he had been told the situation would ease considerably within the next week and asked that people buy only what they need until then. His was the only store in which there was any rush. He said that people were buying 10 pound bags as fast as they could be put up. He said, also, that there will be an abundance in a short time.

Another dealer said that indications in his store were that people are only taking what they need and the rush has calmed down almost completely. He also stated that he is getting all the sugar he orders from his wholesaler and that there is no necessity for hoarding.

On the whole, the retailers are optimistic about the situation and feel that sugar will be plentiful within the next few weeks. However, they all seemed to feel that hoarding sugar would only irritate the situation. They all wish to supply enough sugar for people to do a pre-war quota of canning and cooking during the summer.

Heavy Rainfall Wednesday Night

During a series of heavy electrical storms late Wednesday night, lightning struck a number of times in and near this city, and rainfall totaled .81 of an inch.

Rain was general over much of the county, and came at a time when really need to soften the crust that had formed over nearly all planted ground, and to soften the hard ground which remains to be plowed.

Additional rainfall was forecast for Thursday.

While the precipitation Wednesday night halted most of the hay making in the county, it did much toward making soil more tillable, and bring up late planted corn and soybeans.
